

FUNERAL RITES OF MRS HARDING MONDAY TO BE GIVEN MILITARY HONORS

War Department Orders Signal Honor for Widow of President—Will Be Buried Beside Body of President—Many Expressions Received

Washington, Nov. 22.—Military honors will be rendered at the funeral services for Mrs. Warren G. Harding at Marion, O., Monday. Orders were issued today by the War Department.

A major General Omar Bundy, commander of the Fifth corps, Columbus, O., was instructed to send a company of 100 men, properly officered, to supplement the force of 25 soldiers that are on duty at the funeral home.

Marion, O., Nov. 22.—Carrie Jacobs Bond's "The End of a Day" will be sung by the Junior glee club at the funeral of Mrs. Warren G. Harding Monday afternoon.

Marion, O., Nov. 22.—That President Coolidge contemplates being a candidate for president four years hence, provided he still retains his health, is the belief here.

His belief was strengthened when it became known that he had asked William M. Butler to continue as chairman of the Republican national committee, despite his appointment as United States senator from Massachusetts.

Butler conducted the president's campaign with such marked success that the white house desires him to be in charge of the national machinery. Should Coolidge run again, Butler's experience and connections formed during the pre-convention and election campaign would be invaluable.

Butler's personnel of the party or his connections and the contracts with his contributors so well in hand that he has a natural advantage over his opponents.

As stated at the white house, the president will take no part in the contest for Republican leadership in congress. Coolidge feels that it is not his part to dictate or suggest in such decisions, and that he makes such a choice as is made by the membership will be satisfactory to the administration.

Senator Curtis of Kansas, the Republican who for the party conference next week, when a senate leader will be elected and other party organization matters will be settled. Meanwhile, Mr. Warren of Wyoming, who is expected to succeed the late Senator Reed of Massachusetts as senate Republican leader under the seniority rule, has been named.

For his unbroken, maintained position on his attitude toward acceptance of the post. Many members have felt that Senator Warren would prefer to retain the chairmanship of the appropriate committee. He was enthusiastically endorsed for the leadership position, however, by Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, known as an administration spokesman.

Senator Warren does not desire leadership position, Senator Curtis mentioned as among the most likely to be selected. Others considered various senators include Senator Madison of New York and Senator Watson of Indiana.

Contest in the house over the leadership, made vacant by the election of Speaker Gillette to the senate, Massachusetts, will not come up for decision until the organization of the new congress. As is the case of senate, it was said at the white house that Coolidge will not participate in this contest, in which Representatives Madden of Illinois and North of Ohio are now the principal candidates.

afternoon. It was her favorite and it will be the only one sung at the simple funeral services which will be conducted at 2 o'clock at Epworth M. E. Church, followed by a prayer at the receiving vault in Marion cemetery.

Rev. Jess Swank, pastor of Epworth M. E. Church, will preach a short sermon at the church and Rev. Geo. M. Landis, pastor of Trinity Baptist Church, will read from the scriptures.

All her life Mrs. Harding was a member of Epworth Church across the street from the Kling home where she passed her girlhood days. Rev. Mr. Landis is pastor of the home church of the late President Harding.

Mrs. Harding's body will be placed in a black metal casket, the exact duplicate of that in which the remains of President Harding were placed. It will be put alongside the president's in the receiving vault until the great Harding Memorial tomb is completed when both will be removed there.

Mrs. Harding's casket will not be opened at the church. Active pallbearers old friends of Mr. and Mrs. Harding, will include Malcolm Jennings, Columbus; George H. Van Fleet, Edward K. Uhler, Jas. F. Prendergast, O. S. Rapp and Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, Charles D. Schaffner and John A. Schroeter, all of Marion.

Mrs. Harding's body will be placed beside that of her late husband in the receiving vault at Marion cemetery, until the Harding memorial is completed.

Among the messages of condolence received here was one from President Coolidge, who said: "Please express to the members of Mrs. Harding's family the sincerest condolences of Mrs. Coolidge and myself. We share in fullest measure the sorrow which her death brings to them. We are disappointed that her brave fight was in vain, but it is a source of pride to know that she made it, and made it so valiantly as to arouse the admiration of her countless friends. We shall never forget her unceasing and helpful friendship for us, which will become an increasingly sweet and grateful memory. The nation mourns for her. Our deepest sympathy goes out to those nearest and dearest to her."

Will Attend Funeral. The Associated Ohio Dailies, an organization of newspaper publishers, of which the late President Harding was founder, will attend the funeral of Mrs. Harding Monday in a body. Notice to this effect was sent out to members Friday by R. C. Snyder of Norwalk, president.

Mrs. Harding's death occurred at White Oaks farm, home of Mrs. Charles E. Sawyer, where she had been living for the past year. She lapsed into a complete state of coma Thursday evening and died without regaining consciousness. It was officially announced that death was due to cancer, kidney disease and complications.

With her when she died were Charles B. Kling, a brother; George B. Christian, Jr., the late president's secretary; Mrs. Sawyer, Dr. Carl Sawyer, the attending physician, and four nurses. The end came peacefully, Dr. Sawyer said.

Mrs. Harding was born at Marion, O., in 1860. She married Mr. Harding, then a struggling newspaper editor of the Marion Star, in 1891. As a bride she went in the business office of her husband's newspaper. She became first lady of the land in 1921 and the following year she suffered her first breakdown and serious illness. Mrs. Harding was married twice, her first husband being Henry De Wolfe, from whom she obtained a divorce in 1885 on the grounds of gross neglect. A son, Marshall Eugene De Wolfe, lived to manhood and died in Colorado in 1911.

Governor Donahey sent the following telegram to George Christian, secretary to the late President Harding, upon receipt of a message from Christian telling of the death of Mrs. Harding: "I was indeed sorry to learn of the death of Mrs. Harding. Please convey my sincere sympathy to the bereaved relatives and friends."

Mrs. Harding was seated by her husband's bedside reading to him when the late president died in his suite at the Palace hotel, San Francisco, on the evening of Aug. 2, 1923. At the end of a paragraph Mrs. Harding paused and let the magazine drop into her lap. "That sounds good; go ahead," said the president. A moment later he threw his right hand over his head and sank back—dead.

THINK WOMAN STRANGLED THREE FOUND DEAD

WOMAN MURDERS CHILDREN THEN HANGS HERSELF

Bodies Found In Basement
Of Home In Massillon,
Ohio

Feared She Was Losing Mind

Massillon, O., Nov. 22.—Mrs. Ruth Burkhardt, 32, and her two children, Nellie May, 8, and Donald, Jr., 7, were found hanging in the basement of the family home here by the husband and father, Donald Burkhardt. Burkhardt returned home from a hunting trip and went into the basement and found the bodies hanging there. He said his wife was in good spirits when he left home. When he returned he discovered a note on the dining room table bidding farewell, and then went into the cellar and found the three lifeless forms hanging from the roof of the cellar. Before committing the deed the mother had locked all the windows and doors in the home. Burkhardt could give no explanation of the tragedy.

Burkhardt said that some time ago his wife had asked him to buy a revolver. She had been ill for some time, but recently seemed to be improved. He said that while his wife had been in ill health for several weeks she never had talked of suicide.

Canton, O., Nov. 22.—Three notes left behind by Mrs. Ruth Burkhardt, 32, of 1501 Fay Street, Massillon, who sometime Friday morning hanged her two children and herself in the basement of the home indicated that the woman "feared she was losing her mind."

The sheets of paper upon which the last notes to members of her family were written were torn from an ordinary school tablet. The writing was even and the sentences well composed. In all the notes the remaining members of the family were urged to "be good" but the only reference made to the two dead children was "that Nellie May and Donald were dead."

The little bodies of Nellie May, 8, and Donald, Jr., 7, and the mother, were cut down by Chief of Police Ed M. Erie and Patrolman Oliver who were called to the house by Donald Burkhardt, father of the children.

Two of the notes were written after the lives of the two children had been sacrificed on the rafters of the cellar. The first note read:

"Dear Don: Forgive me for what I have done, but my head, oh, I believe I am insane. Please, oh, please, let Mama have my little Grace and be good to her. Tell Mama not to worry. I couldn't help myself. Maybe it is for the best. Please dress us all in white, the money in the drawer, give it to Mama for my baby some clothes. Good bye, be good to my baby and be good to yourself. Kiss my baby for me and tell her to be real good girl to her grandma and Aunt Lucille. Good bye, Don and may God forgive me."

The second note:

"Dear Don: Oh, forgive me. My Donald and Nellie are dead and I am going now. Tell mother to be good to my baby and you be good too. Good bye, God forgive me. Kiss my baby for me."

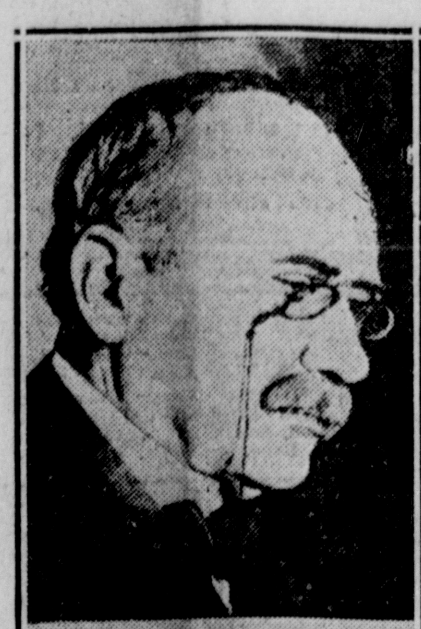

The third note was addressed to the baby, Grace. In this note the departed mother said she wanted her baby to be good to her grandmother and the money referred to as being in a drawer was found in the envelope containing the note, indicating that the note had been written after the two children had been hung to the rafters.

The bodies were found by the father at 1:15 on his return home from a hunting trip Friday afternoon.

Gore to Hold Position. Washington, Nov. 22.—Howard M. Gore, at present acting secretary, will be appointed to serve as secretary of agriculture until he becomes governor of West Virginia, March 4, it was stated at the white house. Mr. Gore's term as acting secretary, to which he was appointed after the death of Secretary Wallace, will, under the law, expire by limitation at the close of this month. Such an appointment will give the president ample opportunity to survey the field of candidates for the office after March 4.

Powers to Aid China. Washington, Nov. 22.—The powers have combined to restore political order and financial stability to China. The most important diplomatic conference in the far east in years is now going on in Peking, with representatives of the United States, Great Britain, Italy and Japan working in concert on instructions from their respective governments on a plan to be offered to the Peking government as the price of foreign recognition.

INCREASED PHONE RATES ARE FILED FOR 42 OHIO CITIES

Increases Would Add $1-
750,000 On Ohio Telephone Bill.

Columbus, Nov. 22.—There are now on file with the Ohio public utilities commission 42 schedules proposing increased telephone rates.

If the commission approves all the increased rate schedules awaiting action, Ohio telephone users will pay $1,750,000 more for telephone service. Twenty-eight of them were filed by the Ohio Bell Telephone company. The other 14 were filed by independent companies.

The Ohio Bell's 28 schedules include one proposing a general statewide increase in long-distance tolls. The other 27 are for increases in business and residence rates in as many city and village exchange areas. The increases the Ohio Bell asks for long-distance tolls will amount to approximately $500,000 a year, and perhaps even more. The increases asked in local service amount to $1,105,800 a year, according to statistics compiled from the schedules filed. The increases sought by independent telephone companies amount to an additional $107,000 a year.

As rates approved by the utilities commission are effective for two years without change, approval of all these proposed schedules would cost telephone users a total of $3,425,600 in a two-year period, of which the Ohio Bell company would receive $3,211,600 and the independent companies $214,000.

In the exchange areas for which rate increases are sought there are 136,000 telephone subscribers. Of these 132,400 are Ohio Bell subscribers and 13,600 use independent company telephones.

The increases asked by the Ohio Bell company in its 28 rate booster schedules range from 4.3 per cent to the astonishing high peak of 125.5 per cent. The low mark is in Cleveland, which, incidentally, escapes without any increase in residence rates. The 125.5 per cent increase is asked for the Barbours exchange area, where the company wants to increase its rate for business telephones from $4.50 a month to $10.

The greatest increase in revenues sought by the Ohio Bell company is in the Dayton exchange area. Proposed increases there range from 11 per cent to 57.9 per cent. At Youngstown the increases sought range from 20 to 49 per cent. The proposed schedule for the Akron exchange area calls for increases ranging from 11 to 57 per cent. In Franklin county in 12 towns surrounding Columbus the proposed schedules, if approved, will boost the company's revenues $23,983 a year.

All of the proposed increased rate schedules will come before the utilities commission for investigation whenever it gets around to the statewide investigation proposed by Governor Donahey early in the year and finally agreed to by the commission on the eve of the recent election.

BRITAIN REJECTS PACTS WITH RUSSIA

London, Nov. 22.—Foreign Minister Chamberlain sent a note to Russian Ambassador Rakovsky declaring the new British government is not able to recommend approval of treaties signed by the Labor government of former Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald.

A note from Secretary Chamberlain to M. Radovsky was also issued, declaring that the British government does not doubt the authenticity of the famous Zinovieff letter. In addition the note virtually reiterates former Premier MacDonald's protests against soviet propaganda.

EXPECT WARM SCRAP IN CONGRESS OVER THE PUBLICITY CLAUSE OF THE INCOME TAX LAW

Washington, Nov. 22.—Lines were being drawn today for a first class scrap in the coming session of congress over the publicity clause of the income tax law.

The arrival of members in great numbers has afforded leaders on both sides an opportunity to count noses and from present indications it appears that party lines will be badly split and the issue closely drawn.

The attempt to wipe the section of the statute books it appears, may even result in the enactment of even more drastic publicity regulations. The insurgents, who accepted the present regulation as a compromise originally proposed that income tax returns be made public documents in entirety.

The present clause, making public only the payment made, was adopted over the protests of the insurgents who finally voted for it.

Senator Norris, Republican, of Nebraska, one of the insurgent leaders, today gave warning that the progressive bloc would seek more drastic publicity provisions if the administration opens the repeal fight.

"If any group undertakes to repeal the existing clause," Norris said, "I shall make an effort to pass my original amendment. It provided that all income tax returns should be public documents, open to public inspection at all times. I would rather favor repeal of the present clause though it would give us an opportunity to enact a real publicity law."

Norris also defended the newspapers which published the payments of income tax payers.

"It was my intention in sponsoring the original amendment to provide for the publication of the returns," he added. "In my opinion, congress had the same purpose in enacting the present clause. I don't believe the newspapers violated any law in publishing the amount of tax."

The administration move to repeal the clause will start in the house. If any delay is encountered there, the drive will be transferred to the senate.

This notice was served on the progressives by Senator Reed, Republican of Pennsylvania, who fought the measure in the last congress.

"A bill to repeal the publicity clause will be introduced in the next congress," Reed said. "I think it ought to start in the house but it will be brought to a vote even if we have to make the move in the senate."

ANTI-SALOON HEAD
WILL BE RELEASED

New York, Nov. 22.—William H. Anderson, former superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league in New York, will be rearrested on one of the four untried indictments still pending against him as he leaves Sing Sing prison on parole, officials of the district attorney's office said. Anderson will probably be brought to New York on Dec. 24 and released either on bail or on his own recognizance. District Attorney Banton said that he had not decided whether he would press the other indictments, but Assistant District Attorney Pecora stated that the third degree forgery indictment on which the former district chief was convicted was by far the strongest of the state's cases against him. The other four indictments charge that Anderson extorted $2,500 on one occasion and $1,357 on another from O. Bursall Phillips, former chief field collector for the league, and that he once took $4,473.14 from the league and $1,750 again.

The injured are: Miss Winifred Park and Mrs. Elizabeth Dixon, both of Akron.

CHEMICAL ANALYSIS SHOWS DEATH TOOK PLACE BEFORE BODY PLACED IN FURNACE—CONFESSION DENIED

Examination Discloses No Carbon Monoxide Gas Taken In Lungs—Report Brings Credence To Murder Theory

Columbus, O., Nov. 22.—Excitement was raised almost to fever pitch here this morning by a report, given wide circulation, that "a member of the Sheatsley family is going to confess."

Assistant County Prosecutor Ray Phelan and Police Lieutenant of Detectives Shellenbarger, who are directing investigations into the mysterious death of Mrs. C. V. Sheatsley, Bexley "furnace victim," were emphatic in their denial of the report.

Prosecutor King at a conference this morning with Coroner Murphy, Chemist F. L. Long and Dr. H. M. Brundage, all of Columbus, discussed the results of the analytical and pathological tests made by Long and Brundage, respectively of parts of Mrs. Sheatsley's lungs and stomach.

Following this conference, Phelan announced that there were, as yet, no new developments in the case.

Columbus, O., Nov. 22.—With the report of an analytical chemist, who examined the lungs of Mrs. C. V. Sheatsley, Bexley "furnace victim," pointing toward death by strangulation, Franklin County Prosecutor John King and his assistants today returned to the scene of the tragedy to start their investigation anew.

C. F. Long, the chemist, reported to the prosecutor that his examination of Mrs. Sheatsley's lungs disclosed no traces of carbon monoxide, which it is claimed, would have been evident had the Lutheran minister's wife breathed after entering the furnace in which she was cremated last Monday afternoon.

The theory was advanced by the chemist that Mrs. Sheatsley died either by strangulation or suffocation and that her body must have been thrust into the furnace after she died. Long preferred to accept strangulation as the cause of the woman's death, he said.

Dr. H. M. Brundage was making pathological examinations of the organs. He probably will not be ready to re-examine today at the instance of Long, port before Monday, it was said.

Three ounces of Mrs. Sheatsley's blood were examined by the chemist. He said five different tests failed to reveal carbon monoxide. Also, he said, there was no evidence of carbolic acid, soot or ashes in the organs.

The chemist's report, with its inferences of murder, came at a time when authorities probing the tragedy had about concluded death was due to suicide, that Mrs. Sheatsley crawled into the furnace after suddenly becoming insane.

Rev. Sheatsley, the victim's husband, was first to come forward with the theory that his wife ended her own life. He told the prosecutor Wednesday that, after due deliberation, he was convinced Mrs. Sheatsley crawled into the furnace.

NILES RIOTERS ARE CITED TO GRAND JURY

Warren, O., Nov. 22.—Prosecutor Harvey Burgess turned over to the special grand jury probing the Niles disorder of Nov. 1 the safe full of firearms and the list of the persons said to have carried them. On Burgess' list are the members of the police organization, who, he said, were led to believe that their membership in the police body gave them the right to carry firearms. The score of revolvers, rifles and sawed-off shotguns seized by police deputies and militiamen on the day of the Niles disorders had been reposing in the safe in Burgess' office.

That the grand jury will devote special attention to the violations of the carrying of firearms was indicated in the charge of the jury by Judge Wilkins. SERIOUSLY INJURED WHEN HIT BY AUTO ALONG DAYTON PIKE

Thomas Clegg, 72, of 43 Johns Street, Dayton, is lying at the point of death at Miami Valley Hospital, Dayton, after being struck by an automobile Thursday night on the Dayton-Xenia Pike, near the Hearststone plat, driven M. M. Ferguson, R. R. 7, Xenia.

Mr. Ferguson told Dayton police that he struck the man and that before he could get turned around another automobile picked up Clegg and started to Dayton with him.

Clegg is said to be suffering from a fractured left leg, internal injuries and a deep scalp wound, which may result in a fracture of the skull. An X-ray examination was made Friday morning to determine the extent of the injury to his head. His condition is pronounced critical by hospital attaches.

While Ferguson was reporting the accident to police, L. W. Scheck, R. R. 8, Dayton, entered headquarters and said he had taken the man to Miami Valley Hospital.

Attendants at the hospital were not sure of the man's identity but a small book found in his pocket carried the name, "Thomas Clegg, 214 Wayne Avenue, and in another place, "Thomas Clegg, 43 Johns Street."

Scheck told police that the accident seemed unavoidable to him. Ferguson said the man stepped in the path of his automobile after he had sounded his horn.

BERNARD MACFADDEN

Diseases of the kidneys are everywhere prevalent in civilized communities. Advanced Bright's disease is considered incurable by many members of the medical profession. In fact, when the disease is too far developed, but little hope can be offered by any method of treatment. When one considers the delicate habits of the average person, it is not by any means surprising that so many suffer from this disease. In character, it is very insidious. Sometimes its presence may not be recognized for a long period. In chronic Bright's disease, the kidneys totally lose their ability to perform their duty. This malady is far more common than is supposed.

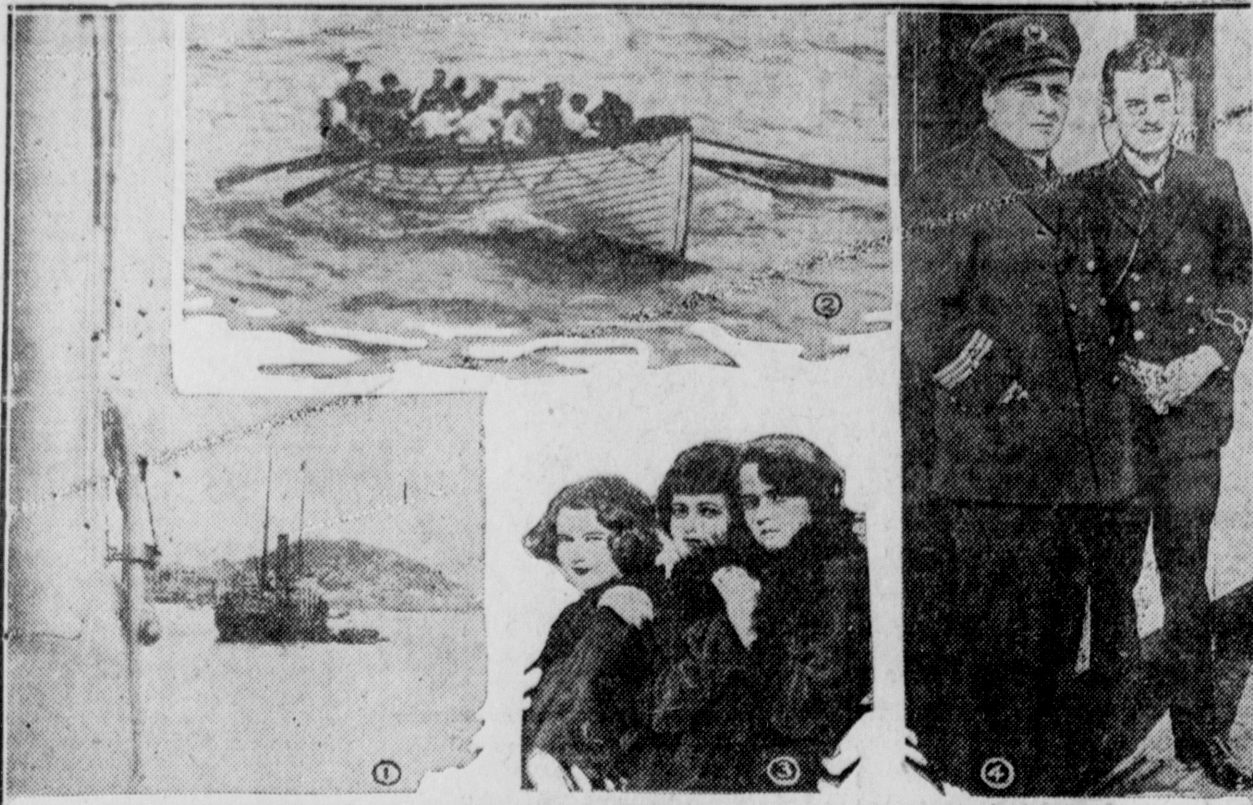

The symptoms of acute Bright's disease are mostly a pain in the region of the kidneys, frequent urination, suppression of urine, very dark, and dirty color, and dropsical swellings in various parts of the body. If the disease has become chronic, the bodily strength gradually decreases. Bronchitis, watery diarrhoea, pleurisy, enlargement of the heart, and frequent headaches often accompany Bright's disease in its advanced stages.

Congestion of the kidneys is usually indicated by the urine being either very abundant and very pale, or else scanty and highly colored. Hemorrhages are indicated by bloody urine.

Acute diseases of the kidneys, coming under the head of congestion, inflammation and hemorrhage, may in some cases be the result of an accident, or may be accompanied by some other disease. Inflammation of the kidneys is not infrequently a complication with scarlet fever, measles, diphtheria, and diseases of this character. The most common cause, however, is the free use of alcoholic beverages, whiskey, beer, wine, hard cider, etc.

Stimulating and improper foods also have much to do with inducing disease. The use of alcoholic liquors and excessive feeding are evils that are closely associated with it. Alcoholic liquors, unless used to excess, always stimulate the appetite and incline one to eat too freely. This is equally true of all meats, and very highly seasoned dishes.

QUICK, ACCURATE INFORMATION TENDS TO STABILIZE MARKETS

Why do prices rise and fall?

The stock answer to such a question is that prices rise and fall in accordance with the supply and the demand, prices increasing when demand is greater than supply and vice-versa.

However, there is possibly a deeper reason. What makes for supply and demand and why should they make prices fluctuate? Principally because our present sources of information are not quick enough to keep supply and demand equalling one another—which case would make for level prices.

It is the object of business research today to try and stabilize prices through more accurate and more quickly broadcast information. This is an attempt to take many of the risk elements out of business, and though it may never be entirely successful, due to psychological factors, it will go a long way toward stabilizing industry and establishing the more perfect relations between producer, consumer, and marketing agency.

COMMUNICATION IS ESTABLISHED WITH AIRSHIP BY RADIO

Washington, D. C., Nov. 22.—L. W. Eberle, acting secretary of the navy, has made public excerpts from the report of the Commanding Officer of the U. S. S. Shenandoah on the ship's transcontinental flight in which he said radio communication had been established with approximately 250 amateur and commercial stations in thirty-nine states. At no time was the ship entirely out of communication on the waves, he said, even in the remote section of the southwest. The announcement was made in a letter to Hiram Percy Maxim, president of the American Radio Relay League of Hartford, Conn., as follows:

"No mention has been made so far of the great assistance rendered by the hundreds of amateur stations throughout the United States who relieved the Shenandoah of a great amount of work that would otherwise have been necessary on the high power set. This work was conducted over the super short wave transmitter and, although in several instances communication was not entirely satisfactory, due to swinging fading, etc., it was found that there were enough stations so that satisfactory means of communication could almost always be established over the short waves. The amateur stations worked are so numerous that it will be impossible to mention each one individually, but it may be stated that satisfactory communication was carried on for about eighteen hours out of twenty-four during each day, and at no time was the Shenandoah entirely out of communication over the super short waves, even in the most remote sections of the southwest; while flying over the mountains and deserts of New Mexico and Arizona, it was possible to keep up the communication.

"In many instances messages of 1,000 words or more were transmitted through these amateurs and some of the finest operators encountered during the entire trip were amateurs. This is no reflection on the Army, Navy and commercial operators.

"During this flight the Shenandoah flew over twenty-five states and the District of Columbia. The states flown over are as follows: New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, California, Oregon, Washington, Arkansas, Missouri, Tennessee, Kentucky, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, West Virginia and Pennsylvania. Approximately 250 amateurs and commercial stations were worked in thirty-nine different states. Stations in Mexico and Canada were worked."

Walter P. Chrysler Announces

25 Miles to the Gallon
58 Miles per Hour
5 to 25 Miles in 8 Seconds

With a full sense of the seriousness of the statement—carefully weighing the meaning of every word—Chrysler-Maxwell engineers, without reservation, promise you, in this new Maxwell, performance surpassing in every essential any four-cylinder car in the world today.

To make that sweeping assurance more definite and specific—we promise you in speed, in power, in pliability of power, in swift response, and even more particularly in riding steadiness and comfort, results no four-cylinder car has yet been able to attain.

To go still further into details, the new Maxwell has speed capacities far beyond any car of its type and class, and in the rare instances in which they may have to be used, will register them with an absence of vibration without precedent in four-cylinder construction.

Chrysler-Maxwell engineers have been actuated by the conviction that in addition to its inherent and natural economies, the four-cylinder principle possessed possibilities of power and speed capable of being translated into ease and steadiness which have never been fully developed.

They set out to overcome what have all too readily been accepted in the past as limitations in the four-cylinder engine and to convert these limitations into positive advantages.

No one can doubt that success has crowned their efforts, after even so short an experience as a half-hour's driving demonstration of the car.

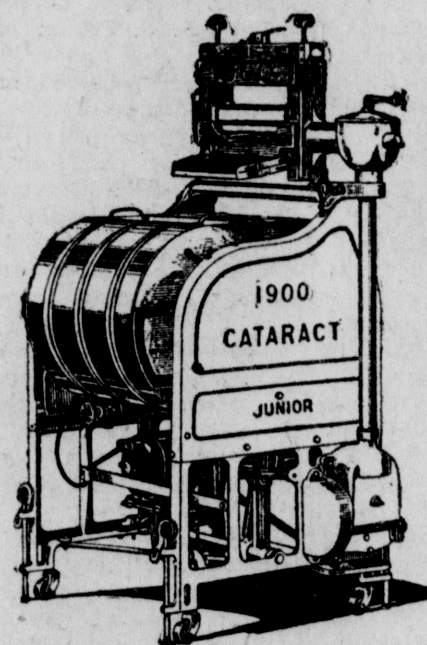

Judged by the unusual and extraordinary character of its performance, this Maxwell is literally a new and immeasurably better type of four-cylinder motor car.

Promptly at the hour Mrs. Arlene D. NEW WORLD PLAN IS DISCUSSED AT MEET OF XENIA PRESBYTERY

As a part of a campaign, staged through the United Presbyterian Churches of the country, to stimulate interest in the New World Movement, a five-year financial program of the church, delegates from the Xenia Presbytery attended a meeting at the First U. P. Church, this city, Friday.

The meeting was attended by a team of workers from the church headquarters, composed of the Rev. W. R. Wilson, D. D., professor in the Pittsburgh Theological Seminary and the Rev. Mills Taylor, D. D., assistant secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of Philadelphia.

Various teams are visiting the different Presbyteries of the United Presbyterian Church over the country in the interest of the New World Movement. A campaign is being waged for $11,000,000 throughout the United States, and the plan is to clear up the five-year campaign in 1925. An effort is being made to put across 100 per cent pledges as far as possible.

Congregations over the country are being organized to stimulate the work. The Xenia meeting consisted of two sessions, in the morning and afternoon. The Rev. Mr. Wilson gave Bible studies at both sessions.

BOOM STARTED TO MAKE ECKENER NEXT AMBASSADOR TO U. S.

Berlin, Nov. 22.—A quiet but substantial boom has been started in certain official and business quarters for the appointment of Dr. Hugo Eckener, as the next ambassador to the United States, International News Service learned today from exclusive and authoritative sources.

The issue of the trans-Atlantic delivery of the ZR-3 to the United States will arrive as a conquering hero when the liner Columbus docks at Bremen Sunday. He will be feted by national and municipal officers, cheered by an adoring populace and entertained with banquets, receptions, parades, and torchlight processions.

His feat, says his friends was more to Germany than many years of foolish propaganda. They claim furthermore, that Dr. Eckener has the instinctive tact, skill, ingenuity, personal charm and straightforwardness required in dealing with America.

Besides he is known as a keen and sound businessman.

Of course the old school diplomats of the foreign office, their sense of the orthodox scandalized, oppose the doctor. They would term it diplomatic heresy to raise the important Washington post a man who had not been trained in the delicacies and trickery of professional diplomacy, but this is exactly what Dr. Eckener's backers call his great asset.

There is no intention to hurry the retirement of Dr. Otto L. Wiedfeldt, present ambassador to Washington, as his record there is considered singularly successful, but it is virtually certain that Dr. Wiedfeldt wishes to be relieved early next year.

Otto Cuno, considered the most promising candidate, has refused flatly to consider the post.

HAT BRIMS WIDER

Those economical men who bought next year's straw hats at the end of last season, appear to be "out of luck," as they will be out of style.

Indications that this condition would exist were evidenced by a shipment of the 1925 crop recently received by a local hat store. Last year's brims were ultra-narrow, while the new brims are unusually wide.

COURT OF APPEALS REVERSES VERDICT IN MILBURN CASE

Reversing the decision in Common Pleas Court in the case of the State of Ohio in the matter of Helen Milburn and Helen Milburn, plaintiff in error against Calvin Dimmitt, defendant in error, and Charles Carroll and D. O. Dean, which held that the $500 bond furnished by the defendant was literally no more than an appearance bond, and could not be collected, the Greene County Appellate Court reversed the judgment and remanded the case to Common Pleas Court for further proceedings.

The previous judgment against the defendant ordered the payment of $150 for the maintenance of the child and the further sum of $2 a week after a certain date.

The defendant, through his attorney L. T. Marshall furnished $500 bond, to stay execution of the case pending Appeal Court proceedings and to have the case reviewed in Appeals Court and the higher court finding there was no error in the proceedings, the defendant was confined in the Greene County Jail to work out the fine. Unable to collect the judgment, the plaintiff brought suit through her attorneys F. L. Dean and C. L. Darling on the bond in Appeals court, in an attempt to collect the bond and the court held that the bond was not an appearance bond. Charles Carroll and D. O. Dean, bondsmen, were also made defendants in the Appeal suit.

After the defendant had been committed under the judgment in the case and after serving ninety days in jail he was discharged under the insolvent debtor's act, which absolved him payment of the judgment. The Appellate Court also decided that this act, did not, in its judgment, release the previous decree from maintenance nor did it effect the right of the plaintiff to collect the amount previously granted by a civil process.

TALES OF OLD TAVERNS AND FOUR BOTTLE MEN

Doylestown, according to a recent historian in the Philadelphia Public Ledger, was built around a tavern.

There is no particular distinction in this fact. Most Colonial villages were.

Philadelphia's corner stone was a tavern.

When William Penn landed on his domain the first building he entered was this tavern.

Here it was that he ate his first meal in the future City of Brotherly Love.

It was the famous Blue Anchor Inn.

There was placed on my desk within the last forty-eight hours a newspaper clipping. It was brown with age.

It was breaking in the creases where it had been folded decades ago.

An old-time wood cut accompanying it is of the Blue Anchor Inn as it stood in 1691, at what is now Front and Dock streets.

There is a creek in the foreground.

On the hither side are a group of redskins, arrow sheaths at their backs, with bows in their hands.

On the creek is a boat containing six men in broad-brimmed hats.

Two men in triangular cocked hats and "knickers" are on the bank awaiting them.

The inn, a squat, widespread building, has a background of forest. There is a rude veranda and low, sloping roof.

I fancy the cut was from an old painting of the landing of William Penn.

The article is a description of old-time taverns, their names and the drinking habits of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries here and hereabouts.

Describing the ancient tavern, the writer says:

"Then a jug of spirits, a barrel of ale, half a dozen glasses, and pewter pots, a box of clay pipes and a few pounds of tobacco constituted the stock of the landlord."

"In the far-away days a saddle of mutton or a capacious dish of ham and cabbage, flanked by a quart mug of old ale, was a niddy meal fit for a sovereign."

Of the famous old inn he writes:

"The Blue Anchor Tavern for age and distinction has held the field against all comers for over 200 years."

"Originally it was a wooden structure, built by George Guest in 1682, and it was here, the house then being unfinished, that Penn first broke bread in Philadelphia."

The "Penny Pot" was the second oldest tavern.

It stood at the corner of Front and Vine streets.

The two old houses were favorable located to attract custom. At that time the Delaware River front was composed of steep bluffs.

Only at Front and Dock streets and at Front and Vine was there a break in the line to afford a landing place for boats.

The "Penny Pot" took its name from selling its beer at a penny a pot; each pot held about a pint.

It was a remarkable price, two cents a pot, for drinks in that day.

Two hundred years ago there were more "speakeasies," or unlicensed saloons, in proportion to the population than there are today, or were before prohibition became the law of the land.

In 1714 the Grand Jury returned true bills against proprietors of thirty-five unlicensed taverns.

Keepers of a number of disorderly houses were prosecuted as far back as 1715.

Hard drinkers and those who would go on "sprees" were plentiful.

The amount of beer and spirits consumed was prodigious, judged by the number of taverns.

In 1744 there were more than 100 saloons in Philadelphia.

In 1752 there were 120 licensed taverns and 118 wholesale houses where rum and spirits were sold by the quart.

A picturesque feature, according to this writer, was the names appropriated by the licensed taverns. Here are a few of them:

"Ship Aground," "One Tun," "Wasp and Frolic," "The Bell," "Our House," "Silver Heels," "Golden Lion," "Purple and Blue," "Man Full of Trouble," "Harp and Crown," "Adam and Eve Garden" and "The Four Alls."

At vendues, or public sales, it was customary to serve strong liquor freely to all who attended.

It was a very shrewd practice.

Men who attended these public auctions and drank freely were likely to buy more stuff and bid higher than if they were sober.

Many a fellow "bought himself poor", as the saying went, at these affairs.

In 1745 the Yearly Meeting of Friends cautioned members of the Society against the "frequent use of strong liquors."

Much as drinking among women is condemned today, it was a frequent practice then.

The Pennsylvania Gazette in 1733 had this to say on the subject:

"It has now become the practice among some otherwise discreet women, instead of a draught of beer and toast, or a chunk of bread and cheese, or wooden noggin of good porridge and bread, our good old custom, or milk and bread boiled, or tea, bread and butter, or milk, coffee, etc., they must have their two or three drams in the morning, by which as I believe, their appetite for wholesome food is taken away, and they no longer have that regard for their reputation which good women ought to have."

At a later period a visitor to Philadelphia wrote:

"It is a wonder how the Philadelphians ever succeeded in shaking off the incubus of drink!"

"They were in a fair way to become a community of sots."

Another observer wrote that after dinner he drank two bottles of light wine "which went straightway to my head."

His host, however, "made nothing of drinking four bottles of port of good capacity and heavy body." Then he added:

"Tippling is a genteel pastime here, as I have learned, and much is made of it."

One of the most famous taverns, sometimes called "Pot Houses", in the closing years of the eighteenth century was "The Yellow Cat."

It stood at the corner of Eighth and Filbert streets.

As a rendezvous for the big men of that period it had no rival. It must have sustained the same relationship to politics and public men as the Girard House did thirty-five to fifty years ago.

Governor Mifflin, General St. Clair, General Knox and others were among its customers.

The author from whom I quote asserts that "it is probable that General Washington did likewise."

This I think is doubtful.—George Nox McCain.

1904-Twenty Years Ago-1924

The Xenia boys who are attending O. S. U. will spend Thanksgiving at their homes. Among them are: Albert Piper, George Schlesinger, George and Oren Arbogast.

Tuesday evening, a Xenia bowling team, which has been dubbed the "Xenia Drytown" team won from a Springfield team in three straight games.

The Thanksgiving season has brought a rush to the office of the Probate Judge of those who have been pierced by Cupid's darts and are preparing to take life partners.

The membership banquet at the Young Men's Christian Association last evening was a very enjoyable occasion. About 100 members and workers attended.

"I wish I could save money as some women do," lamented a friend of mine, "but every time I get a little ahead on my housekeeping expenses, there is always some old piece of furniture to be replaced or some new garment to buy."

"Why don't you make the old things do a little longer?" I inquired. "That's the only way that lots of people manage to save."

She shook her head. "Take this dress I'm wearing for example; isn't it a sight? I've had it three years. I'm ashamed to go around in it any longer. I need a new one desperately."

I studied her dress. It was a dark blue serge which, until that moment, I had thought fairly new. She had kept it neatly pressed. If it had ever had any spots on it she had carefully removed them. To all appearances the dress was in perfect condition, a practical, becoming garment.

"I told her of my first impression of it. 'You see,' I pointed out, 'if you hadn't told me that you have had it three years, I'd never have guessed that it was not in good repair. Now that you've called my attention to its age, I notice that there is a tiny threadbare place under one arm and that the very bottom of the hem is cracked from wear. Why did you tell me its imperfections? The world is not nearly so observant as you imagine; a garment always looks worse to its owner than to the casual glance of the outsider.'"

"I believe you're right!" my friend agreed. "I'll make it go another winter."

Shortly after that I met another friend who had reached the same conclusion. Her face had that contented look always worn by people who have money in the bank (I have heard it called "smug" but I don't like that name!) She was wear-

PERSONALITY

You may know just as much as the other man knows, You may go just as far as the other man goes,

IS VIGOROUS RACE TO RESULT FROM RECENT DISCOVERY

In a recent investigation among public school children it was discovered that fully 40% were suffering from malnutrition and vitamin deficiency—actually starving from lack of nourishing elements in their food. Medical men and scientists generally are convinced that this condition has existed for years, and is probably responsible for weakness, nervousness and other evidence of premature aging among our adults.

Physicians have obtained startling results through a new feeding or building process with cod liver oil, and many are strong in their recommendations of a new easy-to-take form of pure Norwegian cod liver oil which also contains blood-building nerve-strengthening vitamins and pure cocoa. It is called CocoCod.

Children who refuse ordinary cod liver oil take CocoCod gladly and sing from merriment on it. No less wonderful is its effect on adults of all ages. Men and women who have been pale, anaemic, listless and lanky, become rosy with health and alive with energy. As rich blood is built up under this feeding process, eyes become brighter and the step more brisk. You fairly tingle with the sheer joy of living, all because your starved system is being nourished by the rich vitamins which CocoCod contains.

Is a vigorous race to result from this discovery? Many believe that it is. Strong blood and calm nerves are the making of a virile people, and CocoCod certainly has a tendency to create both.

Local druggists who have arranged to distribute CocoCod, and physicians and teachers as well, have been fully informed concerning its value. Be sure, therefore, that you secure the genuine CocoCod, the new easy-to-take cod liver oil and vitamin preparation. —Adv.

You may be just as strong, just as clever, as true, Yet somehow or other he wins over you; And you cannot see Why this difference should be, When you know in your heart You're as able as he.

The difference is not in the things which you know, It is not in the skill or the force of your blow, It is not in the work you are able to do, It's in that personality labeled as "you;" The thing you don't see, Is the manner which he Always at his best Makes the effort to be.

He is keen and alert, with a light in his eye, A smile and a word for all men who pass by, He wins their affection and values it too, He makes his life stand out, and just so could you; But you scowl and you sigh And when strangers are nigh There's no warmth in your grip And no light in your eye.

It is not what you know which will carry you far, It's not what you can do, but it is what you are, Improve your mind? Yes, with the books on the shelf, But give time and thought to improving yourself; Make the effort and plan To be that sort of man Which the world loves to honor Whenever it can.

HELPED HER IN EVERY WAY

So Writes Mrs. Trombley of Sharon, Vt., Concerning Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sharon, Vermont.—"I was weak and run-down, had a tired feeling and bearing-down pains, saw an advertisement in the newspaper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and began taking it. It has stopped these bearing-down pains and other bad feelings, and has helped me in every way. I have so much faith in the Vegetable Compound that I keep it on hand all of the time and recommend it whenever I have the opportunity."—Mrs. LEWIS TROMBLEY, Sharon, Vermont.

Glad to Help Others

"I had pains in my back and sides for many months, and my work would have to be left undone at those times. My sister told me what good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was doing her, so I tried it, and from the third bottle I was well and every one thought I looked better. I am glad to help others regain their health, and you may use my testimonial."—MABEL HARTMAN, 1824 Greene Ave., Brooklyn, N.Y. You must believe that a medicine that has helped other women will help you. You should try it.

JUST GO ON

Sometimes it doesn't look very encouraging to go on.

I have come to pass when I felt that way. Then I stopped to think it all over. And every time, so far, I have concluded that it paid. Especially when you know you are going in the right direction.

Not long ago I was driving at night. It was late and I was alone. Suddenly I came upon a change of roads and no signs. I decided to take the one that seemed to be in the right direction. Although the road changed and changed for miles and miles and although I had my doubts many times as to whether I was right or not, I kept going and finally came to my destination. I was right in my choice.

Many times in this life we get off the right road. Sometimes we have little knowledge as to whether we are on the right road at all. But we usually know whether we are going in the right direction. And that's the important thing. Just go on!

Maybe you are full of doubt right now about something that is troubling you. Well, make sure you are on the right road—then go on.

There isn't very much applause for those who keep going on and on. Maybe it is because we are all expected to keep up with the natural movement of things, but I believe it is mostly because the one who goes on and on has such a big idea in his mind that he has no time to attract the crowd.

Then after years and years such a one looms high—and folks watch where he kept himself all the years. No matter what the circumstance—just go on.

Don't forget that the classified section is a saver of both time and money. The A-B-C Ads are alphabetically and numerically arranged-to make selection as simple as "A-B-C" or as quick as "1-2-3."

And the firms who offer things and services through the classified columns nearly always quote unusually low prices to stimulate quick action among the buyers they want to reach.

That-in a nutshell-is the economy story of the A-B-C Classified Section. And that is easily enough to make discriminating and economical folks heed the classified offers daily.

But to look at it from another angle-think of the opportunities you miss if you do not read the classified ads. Think of the money you do NOT save! Think of the difficulty you will have in competing with your keener friends.

FUMBLE ON SLIMY FIELD COSTS XENIA HIGH GAME WON BY WILMINGTON HIGH 6-0 FRIDAY

Wilmington High School football team slipped and splashed its way to a 6 to 0 victory over Xenia Central High in the afternoon's aquatic events at Wilmington College field, Wilmington, Friday afternoon, overcoming that fact that Xenia played its best game of the season.

The annual gridiron regatta was staged in a sea of mud and for the most of the contest, was a case of "you splash me and I'll splash you." Neither team could develop a consistent offense in the slimy turf, the game developing into a kicking duel between Holton of Xenia and Peele of Wilmington, in which neither had an appreciable edge.

A lucky break late in the third quarter, allowed Bonecutter, big Wilmington fullback, to skid off tackle behind good interference for thirty-three yards and the only touchdown of the game. The interference took out all tacklers with the exception of Perrine, Xenia's crack end, who came from behind and tackled the ball totter on the goal line, the pair skidding across the last white-wash line together.

Tretz's attempted drop kick for the extra point, failed on the juicy ball and a moment later and Xenia was right back knocking at the door. The quarter had changed when Central began an offense that struck terror to the hearts of the Wilmington supporters. Using straight football tactics, Holton called his companions in the backfield for smashes through guard and center, and knifing plays off tackle. The attack began on Xenia's own thirty-five yard line and carried the oval to Wilmington's five yard line.

There Coach Roy Black's orange and black pastimers staged a courageous rally, that stopped Xenia on the fourth down. Peele's attempted punt from behind his own goal line, however, was blocked and Xenia was back again to bid for a touchdown. With the ball on the six yard line and Xenia's first down, Captain Allen Zell was unable to strangle the oozy leather, and the pellet escaped him for a fumble that a Wilmington player recovered. This time Peele's kick was good and Xenia lost its best chance to score.

The rest of the battle was staged between the two twenty-yard lines. Xenia gained fairly well on straight football, but was stopped when the ball advanced into enemy territory. The same was true of Wilmington, and the players, bespattered with mud, so that only eyes and mouths showed out of a caking of Clinton County clay, fought with a terrific determination, back and forth over the young marsh that continued rainfall developed.

Punting of Holton and Peele featured during this part of the game, their kicks ranging from twenty-two to fifty yards, and neither gaining a decided advantage. Wilmington used straight football, entirely, evidently fearful of taint at chance in throwing the soiled oval. Xenia attempted two passes in the third quarter, the only time the overhead game was resorted to. Holton's pass to Perrine in this period gained 18 yards but a moment later Bonecutter intercepted another pass, and trotted twenty-two yards with the captured oval.

Xenia made six first downs during the melee to nine scored by Wilmington. Xenia was penalized seven times, three times for off side play, three times for having the backfield in motion and once for clipping. Wilmington was penalized twice for off-sides and once for too many times out.

Marked improvement showed in the efforts of Coach John Ballantyne's gridders and if they play as well Thursday they should win handily over Washington C. H. The line played together more harmoniously and fought every step of the way. The Jordan brothers, Scurry and Peters opened up huge holes through which backs drove for big gains. Perrine and Marshall also sparkled at the flanks. Edwards, who has been shifted to center, played a bang-up game at the snapper back position.

Holton played the premier game of the season at the signal calling job, and Zell was his usual steady self except for the bad slip in the final stanza. Towles and Chitty performed well and Spahr, substituting for Chitty, sparkled. Peele and Bonecutter starred for the Wilmington team. The improvement of Xenia both on offense and defense was not only a source of joy to Xenia fans but a revelation and surprise to Wilmington, which found itself fought off its feet by a team it considered soft. The exhibition showed to what heights the Central pastimers might rise playing real football every game. The lineup and summary:

Xenia (6) Wilmington (6)
Marshall D. Davis
Scurry Reynolds
Harold Jordan Cozatt
Edwards F. Johnson
Howard Jordan West
Peters Pearson
Perrine H. Johnson
Holton Tretz (c)
Towles Polk
Chitty Peele
Zell (c) Bonecutter

Substitutions: Xenia-Bowwell for Marshall, Smith for Harold Jordan, Spahr for Chitty. Touchdown-Bonecutter. Referee: Reese, Dennison; Umpire-Kerr, Ohio State; Headlinesman-Thompson, Wilmington College; Timers

CHRISTMAS SEALS
TO BE PUT ON SALE
HERE DECEMBER 1

The 1924 Christmas Seals which are to go on sale December 1 have arrived in Xenia and plans are now well under way for the seventeenth anti-tuberculosis campaign in this community.

Mrs. Emma McCalmont, chairman of the seal sale for Xenia, said Saturday that the 1924 seal is the most artistic ever produced. It is done in red and gold on a beautiful blue background. It is printed on better paper than ever before and the adhesive material on the back is guaranteed to stick.

"Health, Christmas 1924" is the greeting on the seal. The seal design depicts "knowledge" holding aloft a torch to enlighten the world and resting her hand upon the shield of the double-barred cross, the familiar emblem of the world-wide fight against tuberculosis.

The seals are no longer known as Red Cross Seals, the double-barred cross, emblem of the tuberculosis movement, having replaced the emblem of the American Red Cross in 1919.

The word "Health" on the seal indicates the broadening of the tuberculosis movement into a general work for the betterment of public health in all directions. In the early history of the Christmas seal and the tuberculosis movement, the appeal of the Christmas seal was mainly for funds for relief of indigent families afflicted with the disease, and for nurses to look after the sick.

Today the seals support a broad program of health education and this is based on the theory that any educational effort or sanitary measure that tends to improve general health conditions or to prevent any form of disease, leads to the eradication of tuberculosis. This educational work has led to the establishment of sanatoriums for the care of the sick, and public health nurses financed by taxation, in most of the communities in Ohio, although there are a number of places where it is still necessary to provide nurses and relief work through the seal sale.

RED TAPE HINDERS
MAIL TO RUSSIA

With the thought in mind that many Xenians may desire to send old clothes, shoes and even foodstuffs to Russia as Christmas gifts, Postmaster H. E. Rice announced Friday that many of the packages may never be delivered. Persons in the past have mailed such packages and alleged that the clothing sent was valued at from $10 to $25, and the custom duty assessed was approximately four times the value of the clothing.

All Christmas packages mailed to Soviet Russia must be marked for alternate disposition in case of non-delivery. Because of non-delivery and the heavy custom duties imposed, many packages sent in the past have had to be abandoned it was said.

Packages may reach that distant country it was said, but only after much delay and "red tape."

AUTOMOBILE CLUB
TO HANDLE LICENSES

Automobile license tags for 1925 will be obtained at the headquarters of the Greene County Automobile Club, in the near future, according to an announcement by the club.

While no definite date for acquiring the licenses has been set, it is thought that the tags for 1925 can not be obtained before the latter part of December or January 1.

The Auto Club will be the license bureau during the ensuing year it was declared, and tags will be obtained at the Auto Club rooms for 1925 instead of from Elbert L. Babb, the retiring agent.

BRINGING UP FATHER

The Truant Soul

By
Victor Rousseau

With a sob Joan tore herself away from him and ran upstairs at the top of her speed. She was choking with grief and shame. Hard as she ran, she knew her flight was an incentive to Lancaster to follow her. He went after her as fast as he could, and, as she slammed the door of her room, his hand was on the knob outside. She was just too late to turn the key.

"Joan! Joan! Open the door and don't act like a little fool!" he shouted. "What's the matter with you? Ain't you glad I've come back? Say, I've got a half dozen bottles of the fuzzy stuff in my bag, and we three will make a night of it."

"Oh, won't you please leave me!" pleaded Joan. "Try to remember how—how different you were yesterday."

"That's true!" he swore. "I'm different now. I was a sanctimonious mug yesterday. I'm in my right mind today. It gave me the blue creeps, being cooped up here in this God-forsaken place. I tell you, Joan, now that I've had enough good liquor to soak that morphine out of my system I'm feeling like a king. Say, now, come down to supper, like a good little girl, and we'll have a great time together. Myers doesn't bear any ill-feeling. And we'll put him out after a while and finish up the bottles ourselves. And say—"

He was advancing toward her with his arms outstretched. Joan sprang back to the washstand and snatched up the half-filled pitcher, with such an evident determination to defend herself with it that the man fell back scowling.

"Joan, don't be a little jassack!" he shouted angrily. "I know what you mean when you look at me like that. You think you're above being jolly and sociable, just because I don't choose to stand on my dignity tonight. Did you expect me to go about always looking like a sanctified mummy, as I did when I was ill?"

"Listen, Doctor Lancaster," panted the girl. "I am not going to judge you by what you are saying now. Leave me, and tomorrow, if you are yourself, I shall be willing to hear your explanation, because I know it is not your better self that is speaking. Leave my room now, please, immediately!"

The man glared at her; but he was dominated, in spite of himself, by her courage and apparent calmness.

"Well, I'm not going to fight with you before I've had my supper," he answered. "You think things over, and in a little while I guess you'll see them in a different light. You can't fool me with those mock airs and graces, dearie. I've seen them in women before. Used to believe in them once, too, till I found it meant that it was going to cost me more in the end. You come down and act straight, Joan—see?"

He slammed the door viciously behind him. Joan fell upon her knees beside her bed. There, tearless, but shaken with her grief, she poured out a wild prayer for the lost soul of the man. This was worse than anything she could have divined. Better by far that he had returned as on that earlier day, drugged and possessed by the morphine spirit than in the chains of this devil. Better that he had died. For Lancaster, even when the shift, false, lying drug fiend was in control of him, had never been vicious and vile like this before.

And yet this was the John Lancaster of the Southern hospital. It was the traditional Lancaster in his hour of relaxation. He treated women shamefully, as a gossiping nurse had said. Joan had never been in fear of physical harm as she was now. She rose from her knees, looking wildly about her. Then she heard footsteps outside, and she sprang back across the room.

But it was only the matron. Mrs. Fraser cast a scared glance at her and ran forward. "What did he say to you?" she cried.

"I am afraid of him. I dare not stay here. Where shall I go?" cried Joan, losing all self-control.

In the midst of her terror Joan suddenly realized that the look upon the matron's face was the same as on her first night, when they had held a brief conversation in the same room.

For a moment Mrs. Fraser did not answer her. The women drew together, listening. They were having supper below, conversing in boisterous tones and laughing loudly. Joan heard her own name spoken, and a renewed outbreak of mirth followed.

"Mrs. Fraser," said Joan, "the Doctor Lancaster whom I respect and honor is not in that man's body. I am going away. I am going at once. I shall ask Doctor Jenkins to protect me until tomorrow. He is a gentleman; he will do so."

"You can't go through this storm," exclaimed the other, and, as she spoke, Joan realized that the wind had risen to a hurricane, and the boughs creaked and snapped like pistol shots. "You must stay here tonight. Stay with me, and I'll swear he shall not hurt you. Look at this!"

She pulled a revolver from beneath her apron and handed it to Joan.

"I've kept that ever since the last time he came back like this, when he went raving among the patients, mad with liquor. That was the end of the institution. He frightened a sick girl almost to death. Use it on him if you must—use it, because it won't be him you'll kill, but the devil that's got him."

She was almost incoherent with fear and excitement. Joan took the revolver and slipped it into the pocket of her uniform. Oddly enough, she felt that the Lancaster of that evening had so grossly wronged the Lancaster of earlier days that to kill him would be to avenge an intolerable outrage. She hated him with all the intensity of which her heart was capable, hated him for the wrong he had done himself, the outrage on their love; and under the hate the flame of the love she had borne burned pure and clear.

It was long since dark, but the maid had not lit the lamp outside Mrs. Dana's door, near the head of the stairs. The moon had not yet risen. The women crept cautiously along the hall.

MONSIGNOR BUCKLEY
WILL RECEIVE HIGH
ROMAN CHURCH HONOR

Monsignor D. A. Buckley, Springfield, will be conferred with the high papal honor of Prothontary Apostolic, by the Most Rev. Henry Moeller, Cincinnati, as special representative of Pope Pius X. at Springfield, Sunday. The ceremony will be the largest and most imposing ecclesiastical celebration ever held in Catholic circles in this vicinity, it is said.

The papal honor which Monsignor Buckley will receive is a dignity that is rare in the annals of the church in America and one that carries with it many of the privileges of a bishop. By its reception, Monsignor Buckley becomes a member of the highest college of the Roman Church and is privileged to wear the mitre, the fisherman's ring and the pectoral cross.

Priests and Catholic Church officials from over the state will attend the ceremonies, and others who held charges with or under Monsignor Buckley over the United States. The ceremony will be preceded by a procession from St. Raphael High School to the church, consisting of fifty acolytes, seventy-five priests, monsignors and the archbishop. The ceremonies will be held at St. Raphael Church, beginning at 10:30 o'clock.

After the mass a dinner will be given in honor of the new Prothontary at the Bancroft Hotel. A reception will be held in his honor at 2:30 at St. Raphael High School.

Sealed! to protect
Buick performance

Buick's chassis is sealed. Iron and steel housings protect the operation of all driving parts—seal them in to safeguard Buick performance.

Here are the vital points at which Buick engineering provides this extra protection:

- 1 FAN HUB—Fan bearing totally enclosed—lubricated by its own gear pump.
- 2 MOTOR—Steel cover keeps water from short-circuiting spark plugs. Steel cover over valve-in-head mechanism keeps dust out, oil in.
- 3 STARTER-GENERATOR—Deico single unit water-generator completely housed in single housing. Starting gears housed with flywheel.
- 4 FLYWHEEL—Completely housed. Starting teeth protected from road damage and accumulation of mud and dirt.
- 5 CLUTCH—Multiple disc—completely housed.
- 6 TRANSMISSION—Completely protected. Shifting mechanism holes sealed.
- 7 UNIVERSAL JOINT—Completely encased in ball joint at front end of torque tube—lubricated automatically from transmission.
- 8 PROPELLER SHAFT—Buick's third member drive, which is a torque tube, completely encloses the propeller shaft. It is impossible for road dirt to work from the shaft into the universal joint or rear axle.
- 9 REAR AXLE—Floating type, totally enclosed in rear axle housing.
